N.F.I. METALL s.r.o. is engaged in precise CNC machining and the production of fixtures and tools. The primary goal of the company is to ensure maximum customer satisfaction and environmental protection. We achieve this goal by systematically and continuously improving the quality of our services and products through the ongoing enhancement of all identified processes within the company. We operate in an industry that may impact the environment. The company's strategy is to minimize potential negative impacts on the environment; therefore, the company management has decided to implement an integrated management system according to the standards ČSN EN ISO 9001:2016 and ČSN EN ISO 14001:2016.

The company's management, as well as its employees, commit to:

- Compliance with all applicable legal and other regulations and provisions, particularly those related to environmental protection and adherence to approved documentation for carrying out our activities.
- Improving communication at all levels within the company.
- Preferring investments and implementing technologies with a positive impact on the environment.
- Ensuring qualified personnel and systematically planning to increase their qualifications.
- Continuous improvement and prevention of environmental pollution.
- Cooperating with entities that demonstrate their commitment to environmental protection.
- Developing and maintaining the management system and environmental management.

Every employee is not only required to become familiar with this policy but also to fully adopt it. This policy is a public document and is part of our company's presentation to the public. The company's management supports the established policy and is convinced of its correctness. We strive for maximum flexibility in providing services and delivering goods. We verify the management system through regular audits.

The managing director of the company is responsible for achieving the set goals and programs.
